

Lab Assignment 2

Personal Archive

•

12 July 2017

Build a project archive page that houses and shares your work throughout this course. It should include your name and links to all of your projects. Functionally, you will use this page to navigate to your work during class presentations and critiques. However, it may also act as a platform for you to manage works in progress or display discoveries or design interests with the class. Plan for the design and function of this page to evolve in potentially surprising ways as you continue to develop it throughout the course.

Consider what kind of contextual information is present on this page (the course name? the year? what you ate for breakfast?). How are your projects gathered, represented, and structured on this page (as titles? as images? by date? by name?)? How might this page grow as you add more links or other material throughout the course? How can your approach to this page help us understand your work.